A boat sank early last night at its mooring on the Island, it appears the boat had drifted into the mooring and had damaged its underside, causing a hole to appear, which apparently sunk the ship.

Police arrive at the scene of the incident.

No one was aboard the vessel when it sank, however several tonnes of cargo were lost.

The Agora L Bus lost control whilst driving over the Aspen Grove bridge. Both ends of the bus were jammed in between the supports of the bridge, police have arrived at the scene and are blocking traffic over the bridge until a rescue truck has arrived.

Site of the incident, police cruisers at either end of the bridge.

Police are taking care not to go onto the bridge, as the supports are already under pressure from the weight of the bus.

No serious injuries have been reported, and the passengers and driver exited the bus without incident.
